ANCESTRY AND POSTERITY

OF

Brinton Paine Brown

A CHRONOLOGICAL History of the ancestry and posterity of Brinton Paine Brown, of the village of Brownsville, in the County of Oxford, Province of Ontario, Dominion of Canada, down to his great, great, grand children, from about A.D. 1600 to A.D. 1904 ; also of his two brothers, six sisters and two half-brothers, and their families, with a short sketch of his struggles and hardships in the early pioneer days in this country and his final success ; gathered from tombstones, family bibles and public records, and compiled by his third son, Enoch Burdick Brown. The Paine genealogy was mostly gathered and compiled by Dr. Paine, of New York City.

The first ancestor that we have any record of was Stephen Paine, a miller, from Great Ellingham, Norfolk County, who came to New England in 1638, on the ship "Diligent" of Ipswich, with a large company from the neighborhood of Hingham, bringing his wife, three children and four servants. He settled first in Hingham, Mass., but about 1643 removed to Rehoboth, of which town he was one of the founders and proprietors. He possessed large estates in that and adjoining towns, and was prominent in the affairs of church and colony, being a representative to the General Court for many successive years until his death in August, 1697. His wife, Rise (?), died at Rehoboth on January 20, 1660. Authentic records have been preserved of his sons, Stephen and Nathaniel. The third child probably died on the voyage. The will of Stephen Paine and the inventory of his estate are on file in Boston State House; total value, £5783, 15s, 10d. He left a widow whose first husband had been William Parker, of Taunton. He was the progenitor of one of the most considerable families of the Paine name in the United States.

Stephen Paine (II), eldest son of Stephen Paine (I), was born in England about 1629, and came with his father to New England in 1638 on the "Diligent" and was admitted freeman in 1657. In 1652 he married Anne Chickering, daughter of Francis Chickering, of Dedham. He was an active participant in King Philip's War—King Philip, the heroic Indian Chief—and contributed liberally to its-cost. He owned much land in Rehoboth, Swanzey, Attleboro, etc. Died at Rehoboth in January, 1697, a few months before his father. He had five sons and four daughters, all living at his death.

Stephen Paine (III) was born at Rehoboth, September 29th, 1654; married Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. Ebenezer Williams, of Taunton, who died without issue in 1706. On August 12th, 1707, he married Mary Brintnall. He died in 1710, leaving two sons—Stephen, born April 30th, 1708, and Edward—who with their mother removed to Preston, Conn. He was a Representative in 1694 and 1703.

Stephen Paine (IV) subsequently removed from Preston to North Bolton, now Vernon, Connecticut, where he became owner of a large estate and devoted himself to farming. He married Deborah Skinner, daughter of Isaac Skinner of Bolton, and he was widely known and esteemed during a long and useful life as a public spirited citizen, venerated for his piety and patriotism. During the struggles of the Colonies for independence, though too old to take part he encouraged his sons to do so, a duty to which they all without exception responded. He died in Ellington, Conn., in 1793, in the ninety-first year of his age. Children: Stephen, Mary, BRINTON, John, Deborah, Edward, Timothy, Ezra, Damaris, Roswell; all of whom had large families.

Brinton Paine (II), son of Stephen Paine (IV) and Deborah Skinner, was born in 1737 at Bolton, Conn.; married Hannah Hills; removed to Dutchess County about 1777. Was a colonel in the Patriot Army of the Revolution; prisoner of war for many months in the old "Sugar House Prison" in New York. After the war was a member of the New York Legislature. About 1790 he removed to Newton, Tioga County, and bought a large tract of land, on which part of the city of Elmira now stands. He was the first Judge of Tioga County. Died at Elmira, 1820. Children: Samuel Hills, George Clinton, Betsy, Susan, VIOLETTA, Polly, Hannah, Deborah, Clarissa. The following letter is found among the Clinton papers in New York State Library, at Albany. The writer was a prisoner of war in the old Sugar House Prison in New York city while that place was occupied by the British, and was an intimate friend of the Governor and had a son named after him. Several other letters of Col. Brinton Paine to the Governor are preserved in the same collection.

LETTER FROM COL. BRINTON PAINE TO THE GOVERNOR.

PROVOST GAOL, DEC. 8TH, 1777.

DEAR SIR.—The many favors which I have received from your liberal hand call upon me, with gratitude, to return you in Excellency my sincere thanks, and more especially for the money I received by the flag. I can inform you that for four months after I was made prisoner I never saw one well day, but by the blessing of Him, from whom I received all my mercy. I am restored to perfect health as I hope these lines will find you and all my friends, and must implore your help as I am yet confined in the most disagreeable situation, my money being almost exhausted, either by sending in some person to exchange for me or some supplies of money, which will be gratefully acknowledged by me. I have received many favors from gentlemen here which I am bound to acknowledge, more especially for liberty to write this letter this day to your Honor. I have for some time flattered myself that since Col. James DeLaney is a prisoner with you that there may be some accommodation of an exchange proposed for me and him which I hope, if it may take place, will be ever acknowledged by

Your sincere friend and very humble servant,

BRINTON PAINE.

Three of Col. Brinton Paine's brothers were officers in the Revolutionary War, one of whom, Edward Paine, founded the city of Painsville. He died in August, 1841, aged 95 years. Gen. Edward Paine was a younger brother of Col. Brinton Paine.

GENERAL PAINE'S MEMORIAL.

THE CITY OF PAINSVILLE, OHIO, CELEBRATES ITS CENTENNIAL BY UNVEILING A STATUE IN MEMORY OF THE MAN FOR WHOM IT IS NAMED.

PAINSVILLE, OHIO, JULY 21, 1900.

The monument pictured in the accompanying illustration to the memory of General Edward Paine is to be unveiled here to-day. General Paine was a Revolutionary hero, an early Ohio legislator, and the founder of Painsville, a city of some nine thousand inhabitants. The monument is of granite and stands some fifteen feet high. A statue of General Paine surmounts it. It stands over a triangular piece of land at the intersection of Washington and Newton streets, a beautiful location. The cost of this monument was about $1,000. The plan to erect this monument was set on foot last fall by Mrs. Lydia P. Noble, a grand daughter of General Paine. The daughters of the American Revolution became interested and it was decided to make the date of the unveiling of the monument the occasion for a centennial celebration, for it is just one hundred years since General Paine settled a mile south of Lake Erie and two miles north of the present business centre of Painsville. Among those who have been asked to take part in the ceremonies attending the unveiling of the monument to General Paine are Representative T. E. Burton, of Cleveland, and Senator Hanna.

General Edward Paine was born in Bolton, Conn., in 1746. While still a resident of Connecticut he enlisted for seven months in a regiment of militia. In June, 1776, he became first lieutenant in Captain Berge's Company and was soon afterwards ordered to New York. In 1777 he was commissioned a lieutenant in the fifth company of the alarm list, Nineteenth Regiment of the Connecticut Militia and, later became a captain in the same company. He afterwards became a brigadier-general of the Militia in New York State. In 1796 he, with his son, went west from New York on an exploring trip. They went as far as the mouth of the Cuyahoga River, having come from Buffalo in a sail boat. From Cleveland they started to return on foot. When they reached the mouth of the Grand River, which is near Painsville, they were struck with the beauty of the location and scenery. Later General Paine bought a large tract of land where Painsville now stands. He interested a party of sixty-six persons in the new territory, and this entire party started this way from the east, arriving in 1800. They came west to Buffalo in sleighs, expecting to take the ice from that point to their destination. When they got thirty miles west of Buffalo the ice failed them, and they were compelled to wait till spring to continue their journey. Near Cattarangus Creek they built log cabins, in which to spend the winter. A number of the men went on foot to the present site of Painsville and began to prepare their future homes. In May, the following spring, the rest of the party came on in open boats, the ice having broken up by that time. General Paine's first residence in this territory was a log cabin. Later he built a pretentious residence, but it has since been burned down and only the foundation remains to mark the place. General Paine was a public spirited man in every respect. He brought the Bible with him and inaugurated the work of preaching and of school teaching in the new territory. He was an intellectual man and one capable of leading the people aright. He was twice elected to the Ohio Legislature. He died on August 28, 1841, at the age of ninety-five years and eleven months.

Violetta Paine, third daughter of Colonel Brinton Paine and Hannah Hills (his wife), was born Sept. 16, 1767, at New York; married Benajah Brown (born Oct. 23, 1762, of Scottish parents) on September 8, 1784. Benajah Brown was a captain of the Winchester Militia, Fourth Regiment. They had three sons and six daughters: Elizabeth, born July 1, 1785; Polly, born Jan. 1, 1787; Clarissa, born April 12, 1789; Walter, born April 8, 1791; Electa, born Jan. 18, 1794; Brinton Paine, born Aug. 1, 1797; Stella, born Jan. 24, 1800; Harriet, born April 1, 1802; Benajah Malery, born Jan. 24, 1804. After the War of the Revolution closed, Benajah Brown bought six hundred acres of land on the Genesee River, State of New York, at a place at that time called "Big Tree or Painted Post," afterwards called Geneseo, a place where the Indians used to gather to hold their councils, war dances and pow wows. At one time the Indians became very ugly and savage, so much so, that the whole settlement of white people moved to one place to protect themselves. After he had been on his land for several years, old General Wadsworth claimed that it was his land. He put the matter into Court and gained the suit, and Benajah Brown was dispossessed of his land and nearly financially ruined. He considered that he had been robbed of his land because General Wadsworth was a rich and prominent man and seemed to have an influence with the Court. He became disgusted and declared that, if the country that he had fought for would not protect him in his honest rights, he would not stay in it; so in the fall of 1797 he took his family and moved into Canada, crossing the Niagara River at Fort Erie. There was at that time a number of British soldiers stationed at Fort Erie. He stopped there about one year working about the fort, and his wife Violetta knit sox for the soldiers. He then moved up to the Grand River, at that time called the "Big Bend," now Bow Park Farm. He worked for three years for the noted Indian Chief Brant, teaching the Indians to farm and to break oxen to work. His wife Violetta became dissatisfied with raising her family entirely amongst the Indians, so in 1801 they moved up to West Oxford, and drew one hundred acres of land on the River Thames, about two miles west of where Ingersoll now stands. He lived there about four years and did his settling duties. In the winter of 1805 he and a neighbor by the name of Major Touseley went to Little York (now the city of Toronto) with a pair of horses and sleigh to get the deeds of their land and other things that they needed, such as leather, groceries, etc.. They got their deeds, and what things they wanted, and started for home. In coming back they undertook a short cut across Burlington Bay, at Hamilton, on the ice. They only went a short distance before the horses and sleigh, with them in it, broke through the ice. They were seen by parties on shore who came to their assistance. When they came up Mr. Brown said: "Help the Major out first; he has been down once; I can keep up." They threw the Major the rope and pulled him out all right. Then they threw Mr. Brown the rope, when they pulled so hard and quick that the rope broke, and he went down and never came up until he was grappled up. He was a large man and had on a heavy bear-skin overcoat. He was grappled out, taken home and buried in the old Ingersoll cemetery, on King street, east of the town. He was drowned on January 25, 1805.

Violetta Brown (Benajah's widow) was left in a new and sparsely settled country with a large, young family, the youngest child being about one year old. She managed to get along the best way she could and support her family for a year or two. In 1806 she married Solomon Nichols. They had two sons: Sylvanus, born April 23, 1807, and Samuel, born April 30, 1809. In a short time she disposed of her farm in Oxford and moved to Walsingham, Norfolk County, and bought a farm on the Front Road, on the lake shore, about two miles east of Port Rowan. Solomon Nichols died in 1814, but Violetta (his widow) lived on the farm for a great many years. She finally disposed of it and went to live with her children. She died at her daughter Electa's, Mrs. Samuel Harper, in Malahide, October 15, 1844, and was buried in the Burdick cemetery, three miles east of Aylmer.

Ancestry and Posterity of Elizabeth Hoy Brown

A CHRONOLOGICAL history of the ancestry and posterity of Elizabeth Hoy Brown (my mother), third daughter of Phœbe and Joshua Hoy, her brother and her four sisters and their families; also her two half-brothers and her two half-sisters and their families, from A.D. 1744 to A.D. 1904.

The first ancestor we have any record of on my mother's side was James Burdick, born March 7, 1744, in Scotland (in the old country). He came to America about the year 1760, and married in 1766 Phœbe Smith (born Sept. 18, 1748). They settled on the boundary line between Massachusetts and Vermont, where he ran a grist mill and ferry boat. They had five sons and five daughters: Abigail, born Dec. 31, 1767; PHŒBE, born Aug. 26, 1769; Rachel, born June 11, 1772; Enoch, born Sept. 24, 1774; Samuel, born June 25, 1776; Mercy, born May 6, 1779; Isaac, born Nov. 29, 1782; Joshua and Caleb (twins), born Aug. 17, 1785; Hulda, born June 6, 1789.

PHŒBE Burdick, second daughter of James and Phœbe Burdick, married Joshua Hoy in 1793. They settled in West Oxford, and had one son and five daughters: Annie, Joshua, Lury Ann, ELIZABETH, Almira, and Lucy, all born in West Oxford, Oxford County. Joshua Hoy, Sr., died in 1804; buried in the old cemetery at Ingersoll, on King street, east of the town.

Annie Hoy, eldest daughter of Phœbe and Joshua Hoy, born in 1794, married Abram Smith in 1811. They settled in the Township of Sombra, Lambton County, on the River St. Clair, and had five sons and five daughters: Phœbe, Lury Ann, Andrew, Rachel, Duncan, David, Almira, Isaac, Polly, Elizabeth. Andrew Smith, their eldest son, still lives at Sombra and carries on a large store and other business with his son, O. A. Smith. Annie Smith died May 17, 1854, and Abram Smith died Dec. 17, 1851; both buried at Sombra.

Joshua Hoy, Jr., only son of Phœbe and Joshua Hoy, born 1795, died in Walsingham June 25, 1830; buried in the Brown cemetery, on the hill near Port Rowan.

Lury Ann Hoy, second daughter of Phœbe and Joshua Hoy, born July 9, 1797, married Edward Foster (born April 17, 1792, in Fredericton, New Brunswick), by Squire John Backhouse on Feb. 6, 1818. They settled in Walsingham on the front road, two miles west of Port Royal, and had six sons and four daughters: Mary Ann, James, Edward, Emily Jane, Isaac, Elizabeth Ann, Henry, Elias, Nelson, Matilda. Edward Foster, Sr., died March 27, 1878, and Lury Ann Foster died Jan. 27, 1885; both buried in Port Royal cemetery.

ELIZABETH HOY, third daughter of Phœbe and Joshua Hoy, born April 2, 1799, married Brinton Paine Brown. Her children and posterity fully recorded in the Brinton Paine branch of the Brown family.
