Preface: The Family History of James Crawford, Loyalist

This is the family history of Loyalist James Crawford and his wife Rachel Benedict. James was the third son of John and Jane (Henderson) Crawford of County Tyrone in Ireland who immigrated to North America in 1733. Rachel Benedict was the daughter of Daniel and Agnes (Wallace) Benedict of Fairfield, Connecticut.

James Crawford was a Loyalist who came to New Brunswick in 1783 from Pound Ridge, New York after the American Revolution. In the 1800's his son, Benjamin Benedict Crawford migrated to the Oxford County area in what is now Ontario.

Today the descendants of James Crawford are found all across North America from New Brunswick to California.

As a teenager, I first became interested in the stories of the Loyalist Crawford family when my Grandmother, Georgina (Crawford) Nichols visited our farm. I remember she brought us dulce which had been sent to her from cousins in New Brunswick.

A few years later, my uncle asked me to re-type the Genealogy of the Crawford Family which had been written by Martha (Haviland) Crawford of Ingersoll in 1934. The hand-written Genealogy was copied by her at least four times. It was written mostly from the memories of relatives in New Brunswick and Ohio and from information in the Crawford Diaries.

The Diaries of Benjamin Crawford were finally found at the Archives of Ontario in Toronto but my research for records concerning where they lived in County Tyrone in 1733 has been unsuccessful.

I was able to prove my own descent from James Crawford, Loyalist and in September, 1980 I received my Loyalist certificate. I then began to read the Crawford Diaries which cover nearly 100 years of Canada's history and began to update our family history hoping to find one descendant for each of the thirteen children of Benjamin Benedict Crawford, James Crawford's son.

Today, there is only one descendant of James Crawford still living in Oxford County with the Crawford surname. The last Crawford, traceable to him on the Long Reach in New Brunswick was Wilbur Crawford who died there in 1951. However, James Crawford's female line of descendants are still numerous in both these areas of original settlement and elsewhere, as you will find on the following pages.
